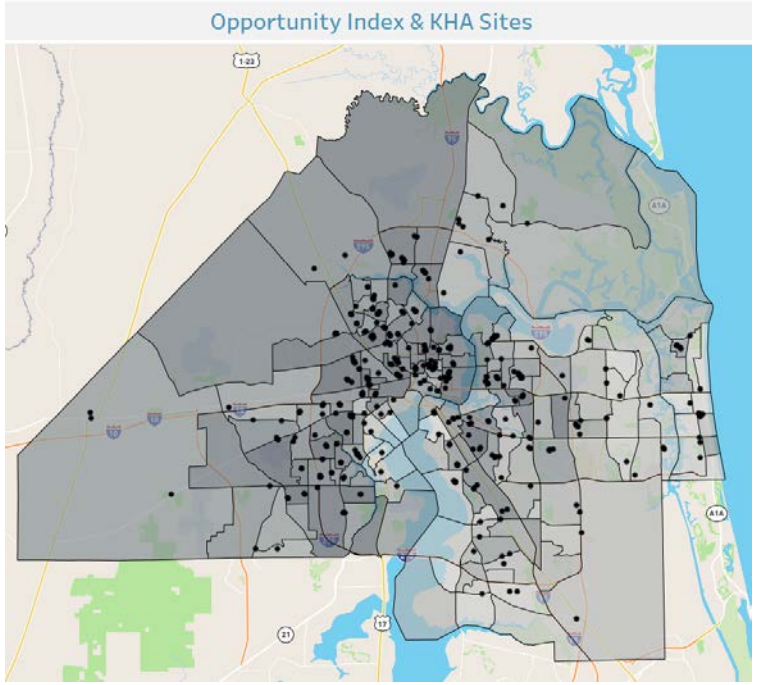
KHA – Reaching Farther

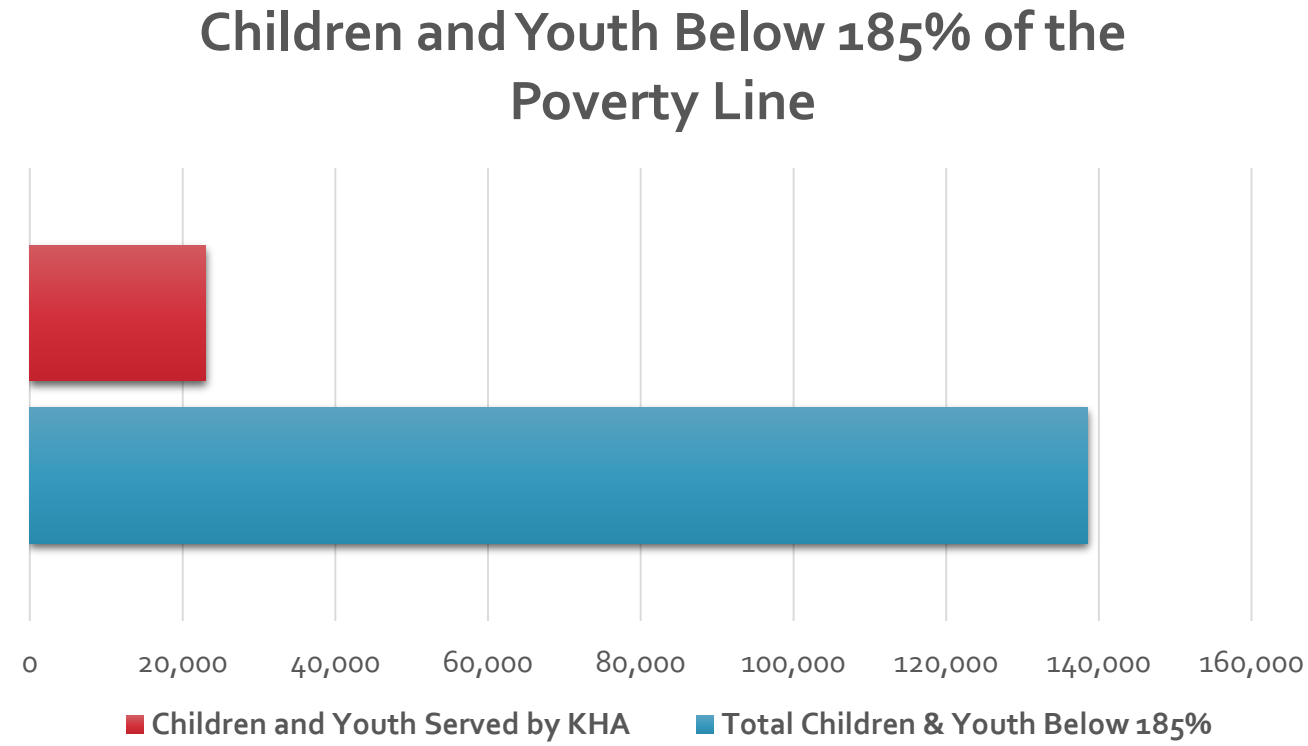
KHA-funded programs not shown on the map:

- Mini-Grant Sites
- Healthy Families Jax - serving 25 zip codes
- Nutrition Sites
- Early Learning Facilities
- Other Support Service Providers



Where Are We?

KHA is tasked with serving “at-hope" children and youth. But who is “at-hope” in our community? One way to qualify for free or reduced lunch rates at DCPS is for the family to fall below 185% of the poverty line, deemed “economically disadvantaged.”



Note – We don’t know how many children and youth are being served by others in the community. We will discuss shortly how to attain the more comprehensive data required to fully understand the need in Duval.

Kids Hope Alliance will be a central hub for both receiving services and learning more about programs and organizations throughout the city.

How Do We Get There?

Results-Based Accountability

Determining Metrics & Building Assessments

How much did we do?	Data From SAMIS # of youth served # of units of service % of children & youth served Total Funding Distribution
How well did we do it?	Data from SAMIS Children & Youth Engagement Retention Qualitative Measures Program Quality
Is anyone better off?	Partner Data Improved School Performance Better School Attendance Custom Tools Pre and Post Surveys

Take-Aways

We need the ability to track services and resources in one place, community-wide.

KHA can and should fill this roll as the central resource both for connecting the public with services, for analyzing the effectiveness of these services and for agencies to share data among themselves.

This would allow KHA to more strategically allocate funds, filling the needed gaps and ensuring the most coverage and help possible for those we serve.
